LOVE LURED A MISSOURI OUTLAW TO DEATH AFTER TWO YEARS OF HIDING

"Rad" Rainey, Who Lived in Woods All That Time With Rifle as Constant Companion, Slain While Keeping Tryst With Woman.

OPENED FIRE WHEN HE WAS CALLED UPON TO SURRENDER

Remarkable Career of Swindler, Indicted for Defrauding St. Louis Merchants by False Credit Scheme—Once Political Dictator of Wright County.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 22.—Special Deputy United States Marshal W. T. Brown came home from Wright County last night with two captured rifles, one picked up by the side of dying "Rad" Rainey, the other knocked from the shoulder of his nephew, "Con" Rainey, by a bullet fired by an officer which shattered the stock of the gun. The young nephew of the slain outlaw fled to the woods and escaped. He is supposed to have been wounded.

A brief story of the shooting of the leader of the south Missouri swindling gang had been wired to United States Clerk George Peppard and Deputy Marshal "Bill" Thomas, and they both met Officer Brown at the depot.

H. H. Ball, former prosecuting attorney of Wright County, came with Mr. Brown from the scene of the killing. Brown had been watching for "Rad" Rainey a full week before he got sight of the desperate man, who, for nearly two years, has defied the United States authorities and sheltered himself in the woods from arrest by the constant companionship of a rifle.

Deputy United States Marshal Thomas had already made 17 trips to Wright County after Rainey and walked a hundred or more miles around through the woods, near the outlaw's home, trying to get a drop on the dangerous man.

He had two duels with him and in the first encounter 15 shots were exchanged. At that time Thomas had with him Constables Charles Sanders of Norwood, who was in the fight yesterday.

Wounded Once, but Courage Wasn't Affected.

The second time Deputy Marshal Thomas wounded Rainey was a shotgun and the swindler ran a few yards into the woods and fell.

He was picked up and carried to the home of a relative and nursed back to fighting vigor again. Then he took to the woods and continued his warfare against the United States.

Everybody who knew Rainey predicted he would not be taken alive.

Brown had the same opinion and went prepared to fight. He called to his aid Constables Sanders of Norwood and his deputy, Thomas. Both are good men in an emergency like this, and they proved their mettle in the crisis that ended the career of the Wright County terror.

"Rad" Rainey had a love affair, and the woman unconsciously led the officers to the hiding place of the man whom she sought to protect from the vigilance of the detectives.

Cora Delaney is the name of this woman, to meet whom the fugitive had left his lair when he was found.

Brown had been watching the woman. He knew she would likely furnish some clue to the whereabouts of her lover.

Rainey had left his wife and was keeping up a clandestine relationship with the Delaney woman.

For several days the officers lurked around the home of the woman without getting a clue.

Woman's Love Finally Overlaid.

Friday morning she left the house and her men shadowed her. She was wily and approached Rainey's retreat very slowly. The officers had much difficulty in keeping sight of her.

She took a position in the edge of a field and waited an hour before Rainey appeared.

The officers had crawled up within 45 yards of the women when the outlaw walked out of the bushes. He had in his hand a repeating rifle and with him was his nephew, "Con" Rainey, who was armed with the same kind of a gun.

Brown and his associates rose up from the bushes and opened fire.

Rainey, with a few thousand dollars, ranked as a nabob and had enough to make him and his heirs rich.

But Rainey was not satisfied with what he had. He had the universal desire to get more. He was not contented for it to come slowly, as it had come until then. He wanted quick returns.

About this time (1895) the mercantile business began to boom in Wright County. Several new stores were opened.

Their owners sought credit with wholesale men in St. Louis and other cities.

The wholesale men, of course, asked their credit agencies to investigate.

The credit agencies, entirely unsuspecting that anything unusual was about to happen, investigated in the usual way. They wrote to an attorney or other leading cititheir place of concealment and commanded Rainey to surrender.

In an instant the battle was on and guns on both sides were cracking.

"Rad" Rainey did not seek shelter. He stood his ground and fought in the open.

The boy fired two shots by the side of his uncle and then ran off about 150 yards and made another stand.

He fired from this position till a ball splintered the stock of his gun.

Marshal Brown had a double-barrel shotgun.

He expected to fight at close range and knew the best kind of a gun for such a duel.

Rainey had fired two shots when Brown fired.

Rainey sank down and his part of the fight was over. He had been struck by many shot in the heart. The dying man lived about 40 minutes but never spoke.

The woman had been a spectator to the battle and went up to the wounded man after the shooting was over. She saw him die.

Extraordinary Career of This Outlaw.

The corner of Wright County took charge of the body and held an inquest.

The killing of Rainey, whose christian name was Conrad, ended one of the most extraordinary and picturesque careers in the history of this picturesque section of the state.

Wright County was long the political dictator of Wright County. As head of the county organization of the Republican party, which ran affairs to suit itself, he ruled with an iron hand.

Nobody could have public office without "seeing" Rainey and getting his consent. He was a shrewd organizer and he managed to keep the tide running his way until only a short time ago.

While he was apportioning the offices among his henchmen he did not forget to keep something for himself and that little share was always the best that was to be had.

The last public office that he held was that of collector. He filled it eight years. His revenues are greater than those of any other office in the county and Rainey, who was thrifty, waxed fat in purse on them.

Rated as a Nabob at Home.

Wright County is primitive, and a comparatively poor man in St. Louis would be ranked as rich here.

Rainey, with a few thousand dollars, ranked as a nabob and had enough to make him and his heirs rich.

But Rainey was not satisfied with what he had. He had the universal desire to get more. He was not contented for it to come slowly, as it had come until then. He wanted quick returns.

NEW INDICTMENTS AGAINST DENNIS

Technicality on Which Former Prosecution Failed Is Avoided in Revised Charge.

The October grand jury returned its first partial report Friday morning, 32 true bills being certified to Judge Taylor.

Three indictments charge Hugh C. Dennis, president of the Rialto Grain and Securities Co., with "settling up a bucket of dirt" and "dealing in grain." These indictments were returned by the June grand jury. The June indictments did not specify as to the commodity in which he dealt. For this error of omission the indictments after correction, were quashed and prosecution prevented.

Two indictments are withheld from the public, but it is known that one of them charges Dennis and some other person with conspiracy to defraud Glen J. Milligan of Sorbier, Neb., is the prosecuting witness in the Dennis case.

The report of the grand jury makes no reference to the James L. Blair investigation, now in progress.

The routine indictments returned are as follows:

Murder in second degree—Lucy Mitchell, William Brewer, Henry Santon.

Assault to kill—William Mack, Thomas Barnes, Thomas Vaughn.

Robbery in first degree—Edward Pope, Lucy Chamblain, Charles Cotterell, James Bruce, George Williams, John Leonard, Dave Morrell, John Irwin.

Grand larceny—James O'Leary, Thomas Murphy, Daniel Murphy.

Larceny from dwelling house—Thomas Finnegan and Edward Emerson.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN WEAR MASKS

Going About Incognito, With Their Beauty as Well as Identity, Hidden.

The women of St. Louis have taken to wearing masks. They go about incognito, with their beauty as well as their identity obscured.

As yet there are not a great number of them, but they are increasing. In some parts of the city they have not appeared yet, but in others one may be seen almost any day.

One seen is not likely to be forgotten. The mask she wears is not at all pretty. Some of the false faces worn on Halloween will be not less comely. The sight of one of them unexpectedly is enough to give an impressionable person bad dreams. But they are not worn for their looks. They serve a very useful purpose and women who have worn them say they would not do without them for anything.

The masked women of St. Louis will be pictured and told about in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Clayton Masons Organizing.

Initial steps have been taken for the organization of a Masonic lodge in Clayton. The county seat has no lodge of this order and there are only five in the county. The lodge will have quarters in the new St. Louis County Trust Co. building. There are said to be 300 Masons in the county.

How Credit Was Procured.

The task of the letter writer of the conspiracy was to see that this worthless person got credit.

This was done by supplying a fictitious list of assets. Let this clean bill of financial health should be suspicious. It always contained a list of liabilities, large or small, in proportion to the assets, but sufficient to show good faith, while sufficiently less than the assets to insure plenty of credit.

Some of these "mushroom" merchants were thus enabled to get listed as worthy credit to the extent of $10,000.

On this showing goods were shipped as they were ordered. For the first few months the bills were promptly paid.

Then the "merchants" began to complain of hard times. They said they couldn't make collections. Finally, one by one, they closed up.

St. Louis merchants sent men here to investigate. They were astonished to learn that all the goods had been sold. The merchants had disappeared and nothing was left for the creditors.

The scheme is alleged to have netted the gang nearly $100,000.

Complaint was made to the county authorities. Juries were packed. All the prosecutions failed, through the influence of the accused men.

Federal Government Makes Investigation.

Then the federal government took a hand on the grounds that the mails were being used to aid the fraud.

Several men were indicted. "Rad" Rainey was among them, and, before the indictment was ended, some of the leading citizens of the county, including officials, were under a cloud.

Some of Rainey's associates were Levi Rainey, a brother; Mat Rainey, his son; H. H. Ball, the former prosecuting attorney of Wright County, who tried "Jack" Kennedy and his band of train robbers at Hartsville in June 1898; George Delaney and N. S. Noll.

Judge Phillips first had the swindlers before his court. He fined "Rad" Rainey $200, Levi Rainey $50 and the other defendants got off with lighter punishment.

Ball, the attorney, was fined $25 and given a severe lecture by Judge Phillips. All the fines were paid and some of the men reformed.

"Rad" Rainey was incorrigible. He went down into Shannon County about Birch Tree and resumed his old scheme.

Indicted by St. Louis Court.

Mat Rainey and N. S. Noll were implicated with the confidence chief. The change of the field of operations brought Rainey and his associates within the jurisdiction of the United States court at St. Louis.

BISHOP'S RIGHT DENIED BY PRIEST

Fr. Maszotas Alleges Persecution in Proceedings Against Head of Belleville Diocese.

Father Joseph Maszotas, pastor of the Lithuanian Church of the Immaculate Conception in East St. Louis, filed a petition for an injunction against Bishop John Janssen in the circuit court at Belleville Friday.

Father Maszotas asks that the bishop be restrained from interfering with him as priest of the Lithuanian Church, pending a ruling on the differences between them by the papal authorities in Rome, which ruling, he says, has not yet been received.

He alleges that in the absence of such a ruling the bishop has no authority under the church laws to oust him from his parish except on charges of immorality or violation of church laws unless formal complaint is made against him by his congregation, in which last-named event the bishop should merely transfer him to another parish.

Father Maszotas charges that he has been persecuted and persecuted by the bishop on account of differences between him and other priests of the Belleville diocese.

In a civil proceeding instituted by Bishop Janssen, heard before Justice of the Peace W. J. Thompson, the bishop's petition for the ejectment of Father Maszotas was granted. Father Maszotas now asks that an injunction against the enforcement of this order, and against further similar proceedings by the bishop be granted.

Maria Johnson of St. James Church, the Subject of Discussion in a Court Case, May Pay a Fine.

For removing her hat in church, walking up and down the aisles, raising the windows and talking out loud during service, Maria Johnson, a member of the St. James A. M. E. church, at 4212 Papin street, was fined $10 and costs in the City Hall police court Friday morning.

Rev. Elijah P. Geiger, pastor of the church, told the justice of the peace that she seriously disturbed the dignity of the services by her extraordinary conduct. She acted without regard for her surroundings and stroled about the sacred edifice on Sunday, Sept. 27, he said, just as one might have done at a dance.

Lauman Suspect Not Identified by Jail Visitor.

Official notification was received Friday morning in Clayton of the offering of a reward of $300 by Gov. Dockery for the capture and conviction of the murderer of Mrs. Lauman.

Miss Annie Miller visited the county jail Friday morning and attempted to identify George Claridge, the white man under arrest there on suspicion of being responsible for Mrs. Lauman's death.

Miss Miller saw a man on the road in the vicinity of the scene of the murder only a short time before Mrs. Lauman was killed. She was unable, however, to state positively that the prisoner was the man she had seen.

Says Ginseng Is Unprofitable.

Papers were filed in the circuit court at Clayton Friday morning, testifying that ginseng growing in St. Louis County is a failure. There has been considerable experimenting with this Chinese plant in the county in the last few years. The unfavorable opinion is expressed in James Dycar's answer to the suit brought against him on a note for $750 by R. E. Barnard.

Dycar alleges that the note was given in payment for 20,000 ginseng plants. He claims the plants were not delivered and says further that ginseng growing is not profitable in St. Louis County.

New Opera to Be Staged.

The production of a comic opera, with a score and libretto by St. Louisans, will be the feature of the opening ball of the Columbian Club Nov. 7. The opera is "The Dancing Master." Arthur Lieber, of 338 West Belle place, wrote the music, and Alice Helms Watson, of 415 Lindell boulevard, the libretto. It will be acted and sung by Miss Clemence Summ, Miss May Goldman and E. C. Lackland, Jr. The scene is laid in Paris 30 years ago, and, although a comic opera, it has a plot.

BULLETS HAVE NO TERROR FOR HIM

One Strikes Craps Player's Skull and One His Arm, Both Flattening With Contact.

IMPRESSIVE AS ARGUMENTS

Victim Not Familiar With the Game and Opponent, Failing With Speech, Resorts to Revolver.

Henry Rafferty of 459 Cozans avenue owes his life to a thick skull. Although shot three times, once in the head, Rafferty is at the City Hospital Friday on the high road to complete recovery. He expects to be out in a few days. The bullet which struck him in the head tried to enter his skull at the base of the brain. It did not succeed. Instead, it flattened out like a nickel. The shot was fired, Rafferty says, at a range of 15 feet, the bullet being from a .38-caliber weapon. Another of the bullets struck Rafferty in the left arm. It penetrated the flesh and the point was flattened against the bone as if it had been mashed with a heavy hammer. The bone was not broken or splintered. The third shot took effect in the leg, but it was not thought to have come in contact with the bone. Rafferty was shot in a saloon at Taylor and Cozans avenues, as the result of a quarrel over a craps game. He says his assailant was a man named Lester A. Irwin, for whom the police are looking. Irwin was unable to impress upon Rafferty's mind the points of the game as he understood them. The quarrel became serious and Irwin is said to have resorted to his revolver. The bullets made quite as little impression on Rafferty as had Irwin's argument. When Rafferty was taken to the City Hospital the bullet which had flattened itself against the base of his skull was found embedded in his scalp. It was removed by the physicians with their fingers. Both men are colored.

SEEKS MOTHER'S BURIED WEALTH

St. Louis County Woman, Thwarted in Previous Attempts, Will Appeal to Court.

BELIEVES HER BROTHER HAS IT

He Boasts of Bank Deposit, the Origin of Which Is Not Yet Determined.

Mrs. Mary Grace of Normandy is on the trail of a small fortune buried by her mother in the cellar of her house near Bonifas, in St. Louis County. Seven years ago her mother, Mrs. Revor, died, and on her deathbed told Mrs. Grace that she had saved considerable money from the sale of fruit and butter and eggs. This she had buried from time to time. She instructed Mrs. Grace to dig it up after her death and apply it to the care of her invalid daughter, Kate. At the time Mrs. Grace gave the matter little thought. After the funeral she told her husband, Michael Grace, an employee of the Glen Echo Country Club, of the buried treasure, but he told her to have nothing to do with it as he wanted none of the Revor's money. However, her curiosity was aroused and she surreptitiously made a search. In a can on top of an old kitchen safe in the cellar she found it. She was afraid to do much digging when her mother's husband was about, as he was a man of temper and disliked her, so that she dug over only a small portion of the cellar floor. She found no more money. In the years that have passed she had almost forgotten her mother's injunction to find the money, until a few days ago some women told her that Joseph Revor, her mother's brother, had boasted to friends in Weston that he was almost $2000 richer by a find in his cellar and exhibited the figures in his bank book to prove it. Thursday Mrs. Grace went to Clayton to find out if she could compel Revor to make an accounting of the money if he found it as described. The officers of the bank in which Revor keeps his account refused her any information. At the probate court Clerk C. C. Wolf told her she could get a citation for Revor if she could prove her mother's title to the money supposed to have been found by him. Mrs. Grace has two sisters, both of them wealthy, living in Logansport, Ind. Cincinnati, respectively, who frequently sent their mother money and Mrs. Grace believes that this comprised the bulk of her mother's savings. She will consult a lawyer as to the proper procedure to recover her inheritance, and will do her utmost to get it.

WHAT SHALL BE CELEBRATED?

Mayor Wells, Turning Over the Pages of History, Seeking Appropriate Date for St. Louis Day.

Mayor Wells would be very much obliged if some historian or student of history, especially as it applies to St. Louis, would name a day which may be celebrated at the World's Fair as "St. Louis Day." The World's Fair management has put the task of the selection on such a day upon the mayor, and he is sitting up nights trying to find the proper one. The mayor has found several dates that would be just the thing, but they happen, all of them, to be outside of the period of the World's Fair. He is still bending to his task, however, and hopes to find an anniversary that will enable St. Louis to beat Chicago, where 752,000 persons attended the Fair on the anniversary of the great fire. The day must fall between April 30, when the Exposition opens, and Dec. 1, when it closes. The first day suggested was the landing of LaSalle at St. Louis, which was the real beginning of the city. This day, however, fell upon Feb. 14—outside the Exposition terms. The date of the birth of St. Louis, King Louis IX. of France, but this was found to be in April. The transfer of sovereignty was found to have taken place March 10. Mayor Wells has in mind several days which fall within the term, but they hardly seem of prime importance. One of these is Aug. 2, 1815, when the first steamboat, the General Pike, landed at St. Louis. Others are the date of the departure from St. Louis of the Lewis and Clark expedition, May 24, 1804, or the date of the return to St. Louis of the expedition, Sept. 23, 1806.

DRAW THE LINE AT MINSTRELS

Mayor Wells Will Issue No More Permits for Them to Parade Streets.

No minstrel parades will be permitted in New St. Louis. This is a recent edict of Mayor Wells. Visiting black-face organizations may pack away their silk hats and long coats, because the mayor will issue no more permits for them to parade the populace along the downtown streets. Mayor Wells' stand in this matter has become public through his refusal to issue a permit for a parade to the representative of a prominent minstrel organization, which will appear at a St. Louis theater next week.

NAMES DATE FOR ST. LOUIS DAY

Mayor Wells Suggests Anniversary of the Town's Founding.

President Francis received a letter from Mayor Wells Friday morning suggesting Nov. 9 as a suitable date for St. Louis Day at the World's Fair. It commemorates the founding of the town of St. Louis on Nov. 9, 1803.

Bartholdt Man Misses Pie.

Much to the disgust of Congressman Bartholdt, Gus Filley is drawing a salary of $1700 a year, as a clerk of the post-office. FATHER SLEEPS; DAUGHTER ELOPES

Pretty Kate Becker Steals Away While Her Mother Is Down-town Shopping.

MEETS SWEETHEART AND FLEES

Stranger Had Been Denied Privilege of Calling at This Lucky Street Home.

In spite of her parents' stern injunction never to speak to him again, pretty 18-year-old Kate Becker has eloped with Elmer Clayball, a man nearly twice her age.

Miss Becker is the daughter of August Becker, a tailor living at 4216 Lucky street, Clayball is employed with the Merchants' Ice Co. and has boarded at the home of Mrs. George Hodgekins, 423 Easton avenue. Clayball and Miss Becker had been acquainted less than three months. When the girl's parents first heard of her association with Clayball they forbade their daughter having anything further to do with him and refused to allow him to call at the house. Clayball and the girl found many opportunities, however, to meet secretly.

Thursday afternoon the girl's father was in an upstairs room taking a nap. Her mother was downtown shopping and her sister, the only other member of the family, was at school. The girl left the house quietly and was joined by Clayball. As soon as the father learned of his daughter's action he notified the police. It was stated at Clayball's boarding house Friday that he also went under the name of Elsworth, mail coming to the house for him under that name. He is about 35 years old and is thought to have come from Odell, Ill., a little over three months ago. The girl's parents are surprised at her action. For, while they knew that an attachment existed between her and Clayball, they did not think it so serious as to result in an elopement.

TRANSIT BUYS 1000 REGISTERS

Largest Single Order Ever Given Is Occasioned by the World's Fair.

The largest single order for street car cash fare registers ever given has just been awarded by the St. Louis Transit Co. It calls for the delivery of 1,000 devices and will be used on the new cars which are now being constructed for the World's Fair traffic of the street railway combination.

J. J. Coleman of New York, formerly the general manager of the St. Louis Transit Co., secured the order, as agent for a St. Louis concern, which manufactures the machine.

Attorney Harlan Exonerated. The case against Attorney Thomas P. Harlan, who was joined in an indictment with Hugh C. Dennis, charging conspiracy, was nolle prossed in the court of criminal correction today, exonerating Mr. Harlan.

Mr. Harlan's counsel protested against the nolle prossed, on the ground that a trial and acquittal would more nearly meet the public view of vindication. Judge Moore held that the nolle prossed was complete vindication for Mr. Harlan. Mr. Harlan had been counsel to Dennis, who was president of the Rialto Grain and Securities Co.

Convention and Social. The post-convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will begin Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock, in the Bohring memorial chapel. There will be a social gathering at Schuyler memorial house from 6:30 to 7:30, and at 8 o'clock addresses are to be made by Robert H. Gardiner and Hubert Carleton.

ST. LOUIS GIRL-WIFE OF PHILIPPINE POSTMASTER NOW SEEKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Daisy Fethergill.

Romance and Incidents Akin to Tragedy Have Filled Her Young Womanhood.

In her plea for a divorce from Roy Fethergill, which she has filed in the circuit court, Mrs. Daisy Fethergill added a third chapter in a life of romance seldom equaled. Married to a man twice her age when she was but a school girl in short dresses, stranded at the age of 21 among a strange people 15,000 miles from home, and deserted by her husband at the age of 22 are some of the incidents in which she has figured in the few short years of her married life.

Her husband is serving the government in the capacity of postmaster in one of the small islands among the Philippines, to which he was transferred five years ago. Two years ago Mrs. Fethergill, then but 20 years old, determined to join her husband and started out on the long journey to his place of employment unaccompanied. A great part of this journey she made through a foreign country and among people that spoke a language to which she was a stranger, but she managed to succeed, and for nine months lived happily with her husband.

During the months she was with him, Mrs. Fethergill was the only American woman on the island. Her happiness was short lived, however, and a disagreement following, with barely enough money to pay her fare back to Long Beach, she was left alone as before, started on her long journey homeward. At Manila her progress was suddenly delayed. A great epidemic of yellow fever was raging over the country and hundreds were crowding the transports in their effort to leave the stricken city. For five weeks Mrs.

PARKS IN PRISON; CAN'T GIVE BOND

Walking Delegates Influential Friends Are Deserting Him and He Is in Despair.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Sam Parks is back in his old cell in the Tombs prison. He has made up his mind that nothing less than a miracle will be able to secure for him his freedom within the next few days. His friends fear it will be impossible for him to give bond.

"I go there and will stay there until they get ready to send me away again," said Parks, as he was led across the Bridge of Sighs.

Even "Big Bill" Devery, who stood sponsor for Parks for a long time, has gone back on the convict walking delegate.

"I will not stand for any man that carries water on both shoulders and is not as straight with me as I am with him," said Devery today.

"Merely as a matter of friendship, I procured bondsmen for Mr. Parks in the sum of $15,000, because I believed that he was a persecuted man. I went further, at his request, and arranged bonds of $7000 for friends of his."

"On Oct. 7, when he returned from Kansas City, Mr. Parks came to me about Farley's bond, and I have not seen him since. He has not been near me, but I understand that he has been consorting with Mr. Murphy of Tammany Hall, and his friends, and presume they will undertake his defense."

"Parks has acted the part of an ingrate to me. He has never done anything for me but has been in constant receipt of favors from me."

Parks walked into the criminal courthouse, the picture of distress and despair. He was pale, and seemed anxious to avoid meeting persons.

He was told that he had been indicted for perjury and that $5000 bail would be required.

Parks denied it had been his intention to run away. He said he had been in New Jersey on business for his union.

THREE REPORTS ARE EXPECTED

Garbage Commissioners Will Meet Tomorrow to Discuss Their Findings.

The fifteen members of the garbage commission have not agreed on a report. They have been notified to meet in the chamber of the board of public improvements Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to discuss their report.

Three separate reports, it is expected, will be presented.

Secretary Edwards will make one for the board. Health Commissioner Simon is said to be preparing one of his own, and Speaker pro tem McCarthy of the House of Delegates will report on behalf of the House members on the commission.

The reports will not be all in favor of the incineration method of disposing of St. Louis garbage. The views of some of the strong advocates of incineration were somewhat modified by what they saw on the trip, according to their statements since returning home.

KING SENDS DOG TO FIREMEN.

Greyhound From Royal English Kennels American Company's Mascot.

YORK, Pa., Oct. 23.—A greyhound from the royal kennels of King Edward of England has been received by the Royal Fire Insurance Co. of this city. The firemen were told to the King's secretary some time ago asking for a dog as a mascot. They are immensely pleased over the result.

Some Definitions. From the Little Chronicle. Interesting schoolboy definitions, two of which are illustrated by sentences: "Fraternal means wild; I picked some fraternal flowers." "Athletic, strong; the vinegar was too athletic to use." "Dust is mud with the wet squeezed out. Fine are fishes wings. Circumference is distance round the middle of the outside."

CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE IS THE WITNESS OF FACTS, THEREFORE WE WOULD NOT MAKE CLAIM TO A HIGHER STANDARD OF CLOTHES UNLESS WE COULD PROVE IT.

EXACTING MEN—THOSE WHO HERETOFORE HAVE BEEN TAILORS' CLIENTS—ARE BEING BETTER PLEASED HERE, AND WE'RE EAGER THAT ALL ST. LOUIS WOULD BECOME ACQUAINTED WITH THE SAVING OPPORTUNITY, AS WELL AS THE PRONOUNCED ELEGANCE OF OUR APPAREL.

TWO MEN WILL BRING KRATZ BACK

Indictments. The money is still in the vaults, under order of the court. Kratz was placed under $5000 bond, with Gottlieb Eyermann, Jr., as bondsman.

Murphy, indicted at the same time with Kratz, fled to Mexico while Kratz was in Florida, forfeiting his bond, and a request to have Kratz's bond increased to $20,000 was made. It was successful, although Kratz, who had returned from Florida, rallied bitterly against the increase. Eyermann was on the new bond also.

When the case against Kratz was called for trial on April 7, it was found that he had fled St. Louis three days before. He was traced to Mexico, and then began the Post-Dispatch's fight to secure his return.

It was found that he and Murrell were together at Guadalupe, Murrell, after being deserted by the beneficiaries of his disgrace, was brought back to St. Louis by the Post-Dispatch, and appeared before the grand jury in later trials as a witness against his former confederates.

Kratz successfully resisted efforts for his extradition. Chief of Detectives Desmond and Detective McEachern went to bring him back when his hiding place was found, but the negotiations for his return failed at that time.

Application for the forfeiture of the bond of Kratz resulted in an order of court. The money, $20,000, was paid to Sheriff Dickmann by Eyermann on Feb. 8. It has been established that Eyermann was well indemnified against loss through Kratz's flight.

STATE DEPARTMENT ASKS IT AS ACT OF COMITY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The state department has arranged for the return from Mexico to St. Louis for trial of the alleged bandit, Charles G. Kratz. The constitution of Mexico making it impossible to surrender fugitives from this country charged with bribery committed prior to the negotiations of the new extradition treaty, the state department has called on the Mexican government to surrender Kratz as an act of comity, a very unusual proceeding on the part of the United States government.

Mexico has a law allowing fugitives to be surrendered under a call, even when their alleged crimes are not extraditable under treaty. The only requirement is that the nation seeking the surrender of such a fugitive shall engage to grant a similar request coming from Mexico.

The state department is waiting to hear from Gov. Decker of Mexico before issuing the final papers accrediting Missouri's agents with authority to take possession of the person of Kratz who is now at Guadalupe, Mexico.

Morton copies of resolutions of respect, in which they deplore "the loss of an associate whose civic and social life was a constant reminder of his admiration and respect, and whom we regarded with affection and love and whose selfless and humane work in the self-culture and human betterment activity." The resolutions are as follows:

JOHN JACOB ASTOR SEES FAIR GROUNDS

New York Millionaire and Former Battery Commander With Fish Party.

Col. John Jacob Astor, New York millionaire and former commander of the Astor battery, spent Friday morning in St. Louis.

He arrived in East St. Louis about 7 o'clock on the special train of President Steubens Fish of the Illinois Central road.

At 9 o'clock Col. Astor and Mr. Fish, with a party of friends, crossed the bridge and took a trolley to the Planters' for the World's Fair grounds.

Col. Astor went from the grounds to Union Station, where he took a noon train for New York.

In the party that visited the Exposition grounds were J. T. R. vice president, and other officials of the Illinois Central.

Mr. Fish's special train was sidetracked in East St. Louis during the day. Mr. Fish and party will go south on an inspection trip, having just finished the tour of the northern division of the Illinois Central.

It was stated by representatives of the road Friday morning that Mrs. Fish is not with the party at present.

Mr. Wong to Clubmen. Wong Kai Kah, vice commissioner general of the World's Fair from China, will speak at the University Club Friday night. His subject will be "The Chinese Government and the People." An informal reception will follow his remarks.

SHINERS ENVIED THE BELLBOYS

Boot Room Attendants at Laclede
Now Have Fire-Red Shirts to Offset Bellboys' Green Ones.

Shirts of scarlet are now worn by the "boot room" attendants at the Laclede hotel. Visitors to that apartment of the demurest rendezvous pronounce them the "warmer" official habilliment ever adopted in St. Louis.

These shirts, in the brilliancy of their vermilion hue, rival the fireman's box back of the clerk's desk. They look very enough to endanger the insurance.

There are only three of these shirts at the Laclede, but they are as effulgent as a sunset. Rural guests marvel at them and city visitors stop to stare at them.

Needless to say, the shirts are not worn by white men. Only dusky youths are employed as bellboys and "boot room" attendants at the Laclede.

A few months ago a stunning green uniform was provided by the management for the bellboys. A gorgeous creation with gilt shoulder straps was given to Wes Easton, the captain.

Then, it seems, the "boot room" artists craved a distinctive uniform. Too, Capt. Easton told them to get shirts alike. He did not specify the exact shade.

The shirt developers met and agreed upon the combustible suit. As a result it is difficult to decide whether the swarmer emerald uniforms or the red flannel shirts are attracting the more attention.

Rheumatism

"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The Pain King."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purified and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich and nutritious, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints and the weak and shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

If you have Rheumatism, write us, and our physicians will furnish without charge any information desired, and we will mail free our book on Rheumatism.

TRIES TO THROW WOMAN OFF PORCH

Angered by Refusal of Little Stepdaughter to Get Him Beer, This Man Attacks Entire Family.

WIFE IS FELLE BY BLOWS

Enraged Neighbors Give Chase and Overtake the Fugitive, but Policemen Rescue Him for the Courts.

After attacking one stepchild with a tin bucket, beating and choking her mother, attempting to throw a married stepdaughter from a porch 15 feet above the ground, and after a long flight from a mob of angry neighbors, who finally caught him and from whom he was rescued by the police, Henry Collins of 21 Bremen avenue appeared in the Dayton street police court Friday morning and received a fine of $100, which he will labor for six months at the workhouse to pay.

Collins went home Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock. He ordered his 8-year-old stepdaughter, Annie, to get some beer for him. The child demurred and the father, grabbing the girl from her hand, attacked her with it.

Mrs. Collins, who was in the room, went to her daughter's assistance. Collins turned on her, grabbed her by the throat, according to her testimony in court, forced her against the wall and there struck her in the face. She sank, dazed, to the floor.

Just at this moment, Mrs. Louise Blefield, also a stepdaughter of Collins, came into the room. She was carrying her baby, Josephine. She laid the baby down and rushed at Collins. The father grabbed the woman by the waist and throat and pulled her out onto the rear porch of the second-story tenement. Mrs. Blefield testified that Collins attempted to throw her over the four-foot banister. They hit him in the face below. She fought desperately for several minutes.

Neighbors Rush to Women's Rescue.

The fight was waged desperately, but Collins was unable to contend with the two women. Their screams had alarmed the neighborhood and people were rushing into the yard.

Suddenly Collins released his hold on Mrs. Blefield and rushed down the steps. The crowd in the yard followed and before he had gone a block, 60 men were chasing him. Two men in a Broadway car, the pursuing party, more fleet of foot than the rest, grabbed Collins just as he was attempting to board a Broadway car at Broadway and Salisbury streets. They held him until assistance came.

Collins' captors were debating what they should do with him when a couple of policemen appeared. They took him to the North End Dispensary and telephoned for a patrol wagon.

The crowd remained outside, yelling and demanding that Collins be turned over to them, but the police kept the people off the building until the police wagon arrived.

BEER AND PRETZELS STREWN IN STREET

Rampant Trolley Cars Upset Brewery and Bakery Wagons and Twist a Lamp Post.

Five street cars on five different north and south lines figured in five accidents within five hours Thursday evening.

A Cass avenue car south bound, jumped the track and crossed the north-bound tracks to a lamp post standing at the edge of the sidewalk in front of 128 South Eighth street. It hit the lamp post a center blow and bent it over until the top end of it was within three feet of the sidewalk. Boys later in the evening restored the post to some degree of erectness, but for a time it completely blocked the walk.

A northbound Grand avenue car struck a pretzel wagon being driven by William Schaefer, at Grand avenue and Winnebago street. The wagon was wrecked. Schaefer received minor injuries about the left leg and pretzels were scattered over the street for half a block.

A southbound eighteenth street car collided with a two-horse beer wagon belonging to the Hyde Park brewery at Twenty-second street. The beer wagon was over the street, wrecked the wagon, and bruised Robert Dickenhoff.

A northbound Broadway car struck a farmer's wagon at Grand street, wrecked it, bruised the driver, Henry Deane, of Oakville, and cut the horse so badly that it had to be killed. Deane was taken to the hospital. The horse was killed by Charles Heinicke, 7233 South Broadway.

A Lee avenue car struck a Union Brewery wagon at 222 North Second street and street and injured the horse so badly that it had to be killed.

Mrs. Schwab Not Ill.

LORETTA P. SCHWAB, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, in her home, 2341 Park avenue, announced a representative of the Associated Press that the report sent out from "ever young Althea" last night of her suffering from apoplexy was unfounded.

Mrs. Schwab said she was enjoying excellent health. She laughed heartily while discussing the subject and seemed to be in fine spirits.

IS YOUR STOMACH ON A STRIKE?

There is nothing to prevent you employing a substitute to do its work.

There is such a thing as forbearance ceasing to be a virtue even in the case of one's stomach. There is no question but that some stomachs will stand a great deal more wear and tear and abuse than others, but they all have their limit and when that limit is reached, the stomach must be reckoned with as sure as fate. The best way and really the only effective way to treat your stomach when it rebels is to employ a substitute to do its work. This weakness, indigestion, and worn-out organ an opportunity to rest and regain its strength and health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach of its work by taking up the work of doing it just as one set of workmen relieves another. They actually digest the food in just the same manner and just the same time as the digestive fluids of a sound stomach do. In fact when dissolved in the stomach, they are digestive fluids, for they contain exactly the same constituents and elements as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of the stomach. No matter what the condition of the stomach is, their work is just the same. They work their own natural way without regard to surrounding conditions.

The stomach being thus relieved by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, is restored and renewed by Nature and the rest of the human body does not suffer in the least by reason of its failure to perform its work.

A Wisconsin man says: "I suffered the pangs of dyspepsia for 10 years. I tried every known remedy with indifferent results until I was told of the remarkable cures of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I bought a box, began taking them and forgot I had a stomach. Three boxes cured me completely. I have had no trouble whatever since. I was and have an appetite like a harvest hand and can eat anything that is set before me without fear of bad results."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c a box. The drug store nearest you will have them in stock because the demand for them is so great and so pronounced that he cannot afford to be without them. People who could not get them of one druggist would go to another and would get them in the habit of buying their other drugs there as well as their Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Authorities of St. Louis University and C. B. C. think Withnell Accident One of a Lifetime.

Football features everywhere in the city were "rattled" over with the pale cast of thought, yesterday, partly owing to regret for the accident that caused the death of John Withnell, St. Louis University's quarterback, and partly from fear of the effect the report of the accident might have upon the game here.

Rumors were rife that the St. Louis University team would disband for good, while it was said the C. B. C. was in danger of the same fate.

While the accident and its consequences are deeply deplored at both institutions there is no intention on the part of either eleven to quit the game.

Members of the faculties of both schools stated yesterday that the schedules of both elevens would be carried out as planned, except that the game between St. Louis University and Warrensburg set for Saturday, would be called off.

Withnell's funeral will be held on that day at 4:30 a. m., at the residence of his father, 3100 Meramec street. Among the pall bearers named are Joseph Schaffner and Edward Peckman, both teammates of Withnell on the "Varsity eleven."

At Washington's practice grounds it was feared that the effect of the death might keep two or three of the team members out of it, because of parental fears. Three of the team are playing on sufferance alone.

It is the opinion of men in faculty positions at the various local schools that the accident was one that happens in a century. Withnell was hurt by a member of his own team, Brother Justin of C. B. C. stated that while C. B. C. deplored the accident, it would not stop football at the college.

"We do not consider football an especially dangerous sport, and surely we have had opportunity to see as for years the game has been played here with faculty consent. The sport is clean and healthful in the main and the chance of serious mishap, slight."

Father W. B. Rogers of St. Louis University, said:

"I see no reason why football should be stopped. Accidents occur in all walks of life and are bound to occur in a sport like football."

"The accident which resulted in Withnell's death would not happen again in a life time."

Will Not Stop
Washington's Play.

Coach Boynton of Washington University said the accident would have no bearing on his team save in so far as it might influence the parents of some of his players.

"The accident was one entirely apart from football, and was a mere accident. As you can see from the story, Withnell's own side did the damage—a thing that does not occur in a game once in 10 years."

"This talk about football and its dangerous aspects is a thing that is proper in a number of sports."

"There are deaths annually from the apparently innocent pastime of pole vaulting than from football, yet never heard of pole vaulting being raked over the coals as a brutal sport."

So far as St. Louis is concerned serious accidents have been of rare occurrence on local fields. The only other death recorded is that of John Withnell, who died from injuries received in a game between the C. B. C. and the Alumni team, on the college campus in 1899.

Pitman, Krause and Kirk are the men likely to be affected on Washington's eleven, by parental opposition. Coach Boynton is expected to hear from today from one of the three.

Washington's eleven had a fast signal workout yesterday afternoon and will go through its final drill before the Lombard game this afternoon.

Luckey continues to show well in his line position and Coach Boynton is helped out materially by his discovery. Unless all signs fail Pullback Tolson will be in the line, and may go to the back tonight with the eleven. Tolson has been out for practice recently and was seen on the list of players to be at a Galesburg tonight.

Don de la Cruz, who plays regularly at the line, is expected to be back in the line tonight. He has had a fast signal workout yesterday afternoon and will go through its final drill before the Lombard game this afternoon.

The men who will be taken to Galesburg tonight are: W. B. Rogers, Bluff and Luckey, guards; Robinson, Sloan and Schmitt, guards; Russell, center; Sturtevant, center; Smith and Pitzman, halfbacks; and Crawford, fullback. Tolson, fullback, will be added at the last minute.

PENNSY CAN WIN
FROM COLUMBIA

Former Yale Star Says Quaker Football Eleven Is a Hard Proposition.

BY CHARLES CHADWICK.
NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The end of the preliminary practice games of the football season is almost over, and the period of big November matches is near at hand. Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell, are each bending every effort toward hammering into shape as a team the eleven which has been developed individually through the earlier and comparatively unimportant games.

The interesting part of the season is that coming. Columbia figures prominently in the two remaining days of October. On next Saturday, Oct. 24, the first big game of the local season takes place at the Polo Grounds, when Columbia lines up against Pennsylvania. A week later the blue and white players of Columbia will meet Yale.

This latter game will probably be the best drawing card of the year in New York, as no matter how roughly handled at other times, the Columbia boys have always been in shape to play the game of their lives on the day they meet Yale, and they have always given the New Haven boys a pretty severe tussle.

On the same day that Columbia plays Yale, Cornell will line up against the Tiger at Princeton.

November will open with the Harvard-Pennsylvania game. Following this comes Yale vs. Princeton, Yale vs. Harvard, and, to wind up the season, Pennsylvania vs. Cornell and Army vs. Navy.

Columbia Makes Excellent Showing.
The two games which are more in the immediate future, the Columbia-Pennsylvania and Yale-Columbia games, admit more readily of being forecasted.

Columbia's victory over Amherst last Saturday showed that the Blue and White's splendid material has at last got together. Amherst possessed a remarkably strong eleven for a minor college. Her victory over Harvard was due partly to that fact that up to the time Stangland made his sensational touchdown for Columbia last Saturday, Amherst's line had not been pressed, speaks for itself. And yet Amherst was seriously threatened by the Blue and White at any time during the game.

Hardly was she able to gain her distance through the Columbia line, but it is no doubt, judging from the game, not only the fact that the game was a victory for the Blue and White, but the fact that the game was a victory for the Blue and White.

Strangland's touchdown was one of the curious and unexpected occurrences which are always taking place on the football field. The game began with Bruce's kick-off. Amherst fumbled the ball near the twenty line and it rolled over the goal line. Amherst had defeated Harvard by the laurels of a fumble and now with her brow Columbia pointed by Shay's fatal fumble to turn the tide in her favor.

The game was a victory for the Blue and White. The line and backfield of the Blue and White was a victory for the Blue and White.

But it is Columbia strong enough to defeat Pennsylvania. At present writing it would seem that the Quakers have one of the most formidable aggregations on the gridiron this year. Many things combine in their favor, not the least of which is the fact that the line and backfield of the Blue and White is a victory for the Blue and White.

Penn. to Strong for Columbia?
Columbia is now in the ascendant. As the writer remarked at the very outset of the season, she is strong in material for every department of the game. T. Thorpe in the line is a touch of strength there are not enough and behind the stars. The fact that men like Metzger, this and Johnny Thorpe are coming into the substitute list shows the kind of shape of a practice game.

In the line and backfield of the Quakers are two first-class center rushes, either one of whom can adequately cover the line. The line and backfield of the Quakers is a victory for the Blue and White.

DAN PATCH AGAIN CHAMPION PACER—GOES MILE IN 1:56 1-4

DAN PATCH JOGGING.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 23.—Dan Patch, with his flaring nostrils so close to the back of the driver of the pacemaker sulky that the width of a hand could not be placed between them, broke all pacing records here yesterday afternoon.

Going against his own time of 1:55, he not only clipped 2 1/4 seconds from that record, but took three-quarters of a second from the new mark set by Prince Albert. The quarter was reached in 22 seconds, the half in 38, and the three-quarters in 1:27 1/4. At the end Dan was going easily, and his mighty frame seemed to contain enough energy to send him another mile as the game impression is that he would have gone perhaps half a second faster at the finish if the pacemaker had been driven out more and given him room. The race was without a wind shield, the front pacemaker's sulky carrying only a strip of canvas between the wheels. The day and the track were ideal.

"SUNNY JIM" HAS RUINED HIS SIGHT

Cardinal Pitcher, While on Hunting Trip, Rubs His Eye With Hand Poisoned by Ivy.

James Hackett, pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, has probably lost the sight of his left eye as the result of rubbing it with a hand poisoned by ivy.

If the physicians fears are verified, Hackett will have to permanently retire from baseball.

Hackett and some companions went hunting soon after the completion of the season series with the Browns. In making his way through the brush, Hackett caught some ivy and rubbed his hand against it.

At about the same instant his face was scratched with a thorn.

Hackett rubbed his hand vigorously across the scratch, and also across his eye.

After a while the hand began to pain him greatly, and he was forced to cut short his hunting trip and come to St. Louis for treatment.

The treatment seemed successful, but Hackett rubbed it again with his poisoned hand. This time treatment failed to give him relief, and he was forced to give up his hunting trip.

It is feared that the right eye may also be affected.

Hackett came to St. Louis from Terre Haute at the beginning of last season. He was signed as a pitcher, but was used for the greater part of the playing season as first-baseman. For the last six weeks of the campaign, however, he was used in the box. It had been announced that he was to be retained for 1904.

TIGERS PLAY SIMPSON TODAY.
University Eleven Weakening by Introduction of Many Substitutes.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 23.—The Tigers will have almost a complete change in lineup when they face the Simpson College eleven on the Columbia gridiron this afternoon. There is not much to be hoped for the greater part of the playing season as first-baseman. For the last six weeks of the campaign, however, he was used in the box. It had been announced that he was to be retained for 1904.

LOU DILLON TO TRY FOR RECORD

Billings' Mare Will Race Against Her Own Time of 2:00 Flat at Memphis Today.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 23.—Lou Dillon will go against his record of 2:00 flat for the mile at the Billings track this afternoon and will also try to regain the laurels wrested from her by Crescens as the champion trotter.

Horsemen freely predict that Billings' little mare, which has already conclusively proven her superiority over Major Deimos, will not only lose her record, but will do so so decisively that Ketcham's horse will not be able to reduce it. The mare is in the best of condition, is in excellent condition—some say it is the fastest in the world—and the weather conditions are none of an ideal day.

This morning there were many number of horsemen, enthusiastic about the race, and many of them predicted that Lou Dillon would go the mile in very close to 1:56, declaring without hesitation that she could trot faster than Dan could pace.

Mr. Billings is not one of those, however, who thinks his little mare will clip off better than 1:56. Ed Deers holds to the belief that she will do the trick in 1:56. Scott Hudson, H. R. Deers and Millard Sanders think she will come under her previous record. George Spear believes she will set a new mark for Crescens.

PUGILISTIC GOSSIP.
Jack Munroe will get into football togs again on Sunday, and will play at right tackle for the Olympic C. team in its game against the Fort Columbus team at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Sunday.

Joe Walcott has come out with an offer to take on Jack "Twin" Sullivan, the welterweight champion of New England. Walcott will agree to stop him inside of 15 rounds, but he will not fight him until the end of the month.

Danny Dougherty, the Philadelphia featherweight, and Chester Goodwin of Boston, will meet tonight in a 10-round bout, which takes place before the Criterion A. C. of Boston, on Nov. 2. Carter claims he will beat Walcott this time, as he has his measure, and will surely get the decision.

Charley Haghey, the Lowell (Mass.) boxer who was recently knocked out by "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien in a fight for the championship of England, has arrived home. Haghey had no sooner reached New York than he wired his manager, James Boutlier, of his safe arrival and announced his willingness to fight Joe Grim, one of the local clubs and agree to beat the Italian champion or forfeit all claim to the title.

Terry McGovern's next fight will be with Sam Smith, the Quaker City fighter. They will try conclusions in a six-round bout, which will take place in some of the local clubs and agree to beat the Italian champion or forfeit all claim to the title.

Joe Walcott, the welterweight champion, and "Kid" Carter, the hard-hitting light heavyweight, have started training for their coming 15-round bout, which takes place before the Criterion A. MAYOR PRESIDES
SOCIETY NIGHT

President D. R. Francis Will Be Chairman of Ring Committee on Opening Night.

President Francis and Mayor Wells are to be chairmen of the ring committee at two performances of the horse show, which is to be held Nov. 2 to 7, inclusive, at the Coliseum. It is probable that Mr. Francis will officiate on the opening night, Monday, and that Mayor Wells will be in charge of the ring Friday evening, society night.

Other prominent St. Louisans will officiate on the other evenings of the week, the list not having been completed.

Officers of the Bit and Bridle Club announce that the present membership is as great as was the total membership last season. The sale of reserved seats for the horse show will open Monday morning. The boxes have not all been sold, so the drawing has not yet taken place.

Reports from Kansas City show that St. Louisans did very well at the horse show there. A. A. Busch took the blue ribbon with his four-in-hand, in which driving counted 50 per cent, carried off first prize in the tandem with his mares, Mrs. E. Odette, the second prize in the ladies' class pair of horses, with appointments, with his pair, Edna and Prince Leaf, driven by Mrs. E. M. Williams of Shreveport, La.

While there is a difference of opinion as to the time, there is none as to the ability of the pacer to beat even his new mark, and the general impression is that he would have gone perhaps half a second faster at the finish if the pacemaker had been driven out more and given him room. The race was without a wind shield, the front pacemaker's sulky carrying only a strip of canvas between the wheels. The day and the track were ideal.

REIFERSCHIED IS READY FOR TEST

Illinois Man's Dirigible Balloon, With Light Construction and Strong Power, Will Be Given Trial.

IT HAS A SAFETY ATTACHMENT

Hydrogen Gas Is the Lifting Force, While Many Small Propellers Give Motive Power.

William Reiferschied of Stretcher, Ill., will make the first real test of his dirigible balloon with which he hopes to capture the World's Fair prize. Nov. 1. Reiferschied has spent a year building the balloon, and is backed by the Chicago Aerial Navigation Co., which he organized after he had completed his plans and constructed a model.

The lifting power of the Reiferschied machine is hydrogen gas, contained in the well-known balloon gas bag, which is enclosed in a metal-covered shelter. This casing or shelter is depended upon to serve as a parachute in case of an accident, necessitating the sudden lowering of the balloon.

The motive power is furnished by six propellers, three at the front and three at the rear, directed by a 2-horse power gasoline engine. The propellers and support for the engine and man who will look after the engine and to move the propellers, is attached to the casing of the gas bag. The lifting power of the hydrogen gas is 70 pounds to the cubic foot, or 20 pounds greater than that of coal gas, used by the Gerth and other balloons.

With the gas bag having a capacity of 25,000 cubic feet, the Reiferschied figure that there is no danger but that his balloon will easily support the framework, engine and two men if necessary. The combined weight of which is estimated at 14,000 pounds.

The dirigible power of the balloon, as well as the motive power, is furnished by the propellers, which are arranged that they will turn the balloon by the shutting off or the adding of one propeller to those in use.

Among the claims made for the Reiferschied balloon is one that it can be moved forward, backward and turned at will in its own length.

The fairly successful trial of the Gerth machine recently was encouraging to Reiferschied's friends, in that he claims to have an improvement of the Gerth machine in every point, while the lines of construction are similar. The greatest differences are in the lighter construction of the frame work, the greater lifting power and the more numerous propellers of smaller surface.

MASONS WILL NOT PARADE

State Communication Welcomes Joseph W. Folk and Hears Report on Expulsion of Boodlers.

The issuance of an order for the expulsion of all Masons convicted of boodling, the welcoming of Joseph W. Folk and a decision not to appear in the dedication ceremony of the Fraternal Temple were the features of the closing session of the 83d annual communication of the Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Missouri.

After three days' session at Scottish Rite Temple, Seventeenth and Locust streets, adjournment was taken Thursday evening.

Circuit Attorney Folk, a member of Occidental Lodge of St. Louis, was introduced in the grand lodge by Judge Leroy B. Valliant, who spoke of him as a man who had prosecuted and convicted boodlers, who, although they had been Masons, would not be missed in Masonic circles.

In the cases of six Masons convicted of boodling three were expelled by the subordinate lodges to which they belonged, and in the remaining instances the grand lodge has ordered the lodges to begin expulsion proceedings.

Dr. William F. Kuhn, grand master, in his address condemned the parading of Masons except on Masonic occasions and on days of national importance as having a tendency to render common and cheap fraternity with those who have no exclusive and dignified. On his recommendation the grand lodge decided not to attend in a body the Festival of the Temple dedication at the World's Fair.

The grand chapter of Missouri, Order of the Eastern Star, in session at the Oddfellows hall, was addressed by Rev. Dr. Frank W. Luce, pastor of Maple Avenue M. E. Church. Officers of the chapter will be elected and installed Friday.

ST. LOUISAN HURT AT HARVARD

Walter Randall Suffers Broken Rib in Football Practice.

C. Walter Randall of St. Louis has been sent to the Stillman Infirmary at Cambridge, Mass., with a fractured rib, received in the Harvard football team practice, just as Raymond Oveson, also of St. Louis, has got back into the game after being laid up as the result of a kick in the head, also received at practice.

Randall is first substitute left halfback on the varsity eleven, and was playing against the scrubs when, in a scrimmage, he fell and received a violent kick in the back. He started to his room, but fell from the pain that he was suffering and was sent to the infirmary. The injury will keep him out of the game for several weeks.

Oveson, despite his lay-off as the result of the injury which he received, stands a good chance of gaining a tackle position on the team.

"IMPROVING ON NATURE"

Has Been the Bootmaker's Fatal Error.

Dryden had the right idea, but the idea is conveyed: Hunt for health with drugs—bought! Leave the doctor's help unsought: The wise (for ease) on new rubber depend: God never made man for cobblers to mend.

Man was born with a natural heel cushion. The shoe-maker tries to improve on nature with hard leather heels.

The O'Sullivan Rubber Company has brought back the cushion that nature originally intended for man. All first-class shoe stores should supply O'Sullivan Rubber Heels for $2 a pair.

O'Sullivan's are "next to wings" new rubber. Substitutes are (next to nothing) old rubber.

BRYAN MAY HAVE TO FIGHT FOR $50,000

Mrs. Bennett Announces She Will Contest Husband's Will Unless He Relinquishes Claims.

UNDUE INFLUENCE THE GROUND

Testament Was Typewritten by Mrs. Bryan After Being Drawn at the Nebraska's Statesman's Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23.—Unless William Jennings Bryan withdraws as executor and relinquishes all interests in the will and estate of the late Philip S. Bennett of this city, who left him and his family $50,000, the will is to be contested by the widow, the brother and the sister of Mr. Bennett.

The ground of the contest will be an allegation of undue influence on the part of Mr. Bryan. This declaration was made today by counsel for Mrs. Bennett after a secret conference at which were present Mr. Bryan and the legal advisers of both sides.

Former Judge Stoddard, in cross examination, asked the former presidential candidate:

"Who was present at the conference in your home at Lincoln, Neb., at which the form of this will and these letters was decided upon?"

"I am not sure that anyone was present excepting Mr. Bennett and myself," responded Mr. Bryan.

"Mrs. Bryan did the typewriting and I should like to say in this connection that Mrs. Bryan's study of law referred to was not with the thought of practicing, but that was might have more in common."

"She learned to write on the typewriter that she might do so in my correspondence, as I was unable to be at home all the time."

"She did the typewriting on the will and the two letters, one to be sent to me upon Mr. Bennett's death and the other to his wife. But I cannot say whether she was present when we discussed the form."

"In the letter to Mrs. Bennett it was stated that the money was to go to you because of the devotion of Mr. Bennett to the principles advocated by you, yet you understood that half the money was not to go for education and charity, but for your wife and children?"

"When you were carving up this estate why did you not tell the widow what you were doing? In the confidential letter, why did you state one thing when the facts were something else?"

The letters were both shown to her after Mr. Bennett's death," was the reply.

"That does not answer the question. It is why you, as an attorney at law, participating in this will, which you made, did not know the facts in the confidential letter to the widow?"

"I don't know of any reason. I think the letters show all."

BRYAN DEFENDS GIFTS FROM FRIENDS IN AN EDITORIAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 23.—In an editorial on "The Idle Rich," in the Commoner this week, Mr. Bryan makes the following comments which may be significant in view of the threatened Bennett will contest:

"No one can defend the possession of wealth that is not honestly acquired, and how can wealth be honestly acquired?"

Aside from wealth acquired by gift, there is just one way, namely by the giving of an equivalent. What one receives from a man, either by his brain or by his muscle, he is entitled to the writer of the world, he is entitled to a recompense. The laborer is worthy of his hire, and his hire ought to be proportionate to the value of his work.

The person who makes an intellectual contribution to the welfare of the world, whether it be in teaching or in writing or in any other legitimate way, is entitled to a reward commensurate with his work.

"Wealth can be honestly acquired by gift. The right of the parent to accumulate for the child furnishes a stimulus that is probably equal, if not superior, to any other incentive to earnest and constant endeavor."

The receipt of money, however, from parent or relative or friend, not only implies that the recipient has in some way earned the money, but also imposes upon the recipient a responsibility for the proper use of the money.

"Society has always recognized its right to discriminate against inheritance. States like New York and Connecticut, have inheritance laws and the manner in which the tax is graded shows that the people, speaking through the legislature, have the power to discriminate between beneficiaries."

For instance, in the state of New York property received by a child from a parent by a parent from a child, or by husband or wife from the other, pays a tax of 1 per cent, while property willed, or descending by law, to other relatives or non-relatives, pays a tax of 5 per cent.

There is no place in the country for the idle rich. If we mean to make a people who, having acquired money, have no other purpose than to secure all the selfish pleasures of the country club and of their money.

There is not only a place but a crying demand in this country for those who, having acquired enough to relieve themselves from want, devote themselves to public affairs and to works of charity and benevolence.

"Our cities would be better governed if in every city we had a group of men, who, after securing a reasonable competence, would cease making money and would devote themselves to public affairs."

"It would not be necessary for all of them to hold office. They could contribute their heads and their hearts to their country's service in many ways."

SUCCESS AND RUIN IN HIS LONG LIFE

Oldest Citizen of St. Louis, John Clemens, Sailmaker, Dies in Poverty.

HAD SEEN ALL UPS AND-DOWNS

From the Day He First Saw Light on a Corsican Ship in Midcoast, Strange Incidents Begin.

In an humble little plot in Bellefontaine Cemetery, John Clemens, sailmaker, who proudly went down to his death as the oldest citizen of St. Louis, will be buried Saturday afternoon.

When Mr. Clemens was admitted to the City Hospital two weeks ago, suffering from general debility, he gave his age as 97. Investigation proved the truth of his assertion, also the truth of his claim that he was the senior resident of St. Louis by many years.

As he lay on his narrow cot, a charge of the City, Clemens often spoke, with a mind as clear as crystal, of life's many vicissitudes; how he had at one time owned all the property that now surrounds the house at 1818 South Eighteenth street, in which he spent his last days at the expense of his children; how when Fremont made his famous expedition up the Missouri river, it was John Clemens who heaved the lead and acted as pilot; how in later years he had amassed a fortune as a river captain, at one time being the wealthiest citizen taxpayer in St. Louis, only to lose it all in failure and litigation; and how, courageously, he had gone back to work as a sailmaker, a trade he had learned in the United States navy in the 30's.

John Clemens would have forgiven and forgotten all, if he could have lived to be 100 years old. That was the wish that was uttered with every other breath in his last hours at the Emergency hospital to which he had been transferred. But the life line snapped before he could round out his five score years.

Mr. Clemens was born on the Atlantic ocean, June 8, 1838. His parents were Corsicans, fleeing to the West Indies. His father was captured there and died in prison, the babe and his mother afterwards going to New Orleans and then up the river to the site of St. Louis.

Since the loss of his fortune Mr. Clemens has lived with his daughter, Mrs. Mary C. Summers, and his son, Alexander Clemens.

SOCIETY GIRL KILLS AN ELK

Roughing It in the Colorado Mountains, She Brings Down Big Game.

Out in Colorado it is the woman who can ride a horse and shoot a gun and do other things not usually done or accounted worthy of being done in a drawing room who wins admiration. For that reason the men of Colorado stand with hats doffed these days to the daughter of one of the richest men in the country, who has been riding horses and shooting guns in manner impressive among the Colorado mountains.

She brought down some big game while roughing it astride along the mountain slopes. One of her prizes was a big elk.

She was out alone with a solitary guide. The big fellow was grazing in a stretch near the Williams river. The rest of the party had laid aside their rifles and were whipping a teeming trout stream to get enough for a bountiful supper.

She spied the giant of the forests. His great prongs moved back and forth across the top of a little hill as the big buck, wholly unconscious of danger, cropped his afternoon meal.

"Quick, my rifle!" she cried. She was at her shoulder in a jiffy. She leveled her sights and put on half a point of "wind" with all the coolness of a veteran sharpshooter plugging out bullseyes in the range. The buck sniffed the breeze; he had smelled danger. Up, toward the head of the hill, he swept the field of view, but one glance was fatal.

The rifle popped.

GIRL PURSUES HER HIGHWAYMAN

Miss Ellnor Stunkel of 1510 South Tenth street was robbed of a hand satchel while returning to her home from a shopping trip Thursday evening.

Ernest Green, an 18-year-old negro, whose address is unknown, is being held at the Soudard street police station charged with the robbery.

At the time the robbery took place Miss Stunkel was on Barry street a few blocks from her home. Her arms were filled with bundles, and she did not know that she had been robbed until she was informed of the fact by a number of children who had witnessed the occurrence, and who pointed Green out as the one who had committed the robbery.

Miss Stunkel had spent all her money shopping and the satchel contained only a few trinkets. She and a boy by the name of Harry Kater pursued the negro and were joined later in the chase by Patrolman Grate.

The negro was finally captured by the officer after a lengthy chase and taken to the station.

CHIEF SWINGLEY ESCAPES UNHURT

Fire Chief Charles E. Swingley was standing on the second floor of a blazing building when it collapsed late Thursday night in the rear of 212 North Seventh street.

He was hurled to the ground amid a mass of flaming timbers but escaped injury in a remarkable manner.

The fire originated in the Jewel restaurant soon after midnight and was discovered by Edward Meany, watchman in the Holland building.

The restaurant, owned by the Jewel sisters, was destroyed. The Evans Sign Co., which occupies the upper floor, suffered much loss. One of its horses was burned to death.

The total loss is estimated by Chief Swingley at about $300. William Randolph, a fireman of engine No. 4, had a hand crushed while trying to make a hose connection.

Many sleeping men in a hotel at Seventh and Pine streets became frightened and fled from their rooms.

WIFE KEPT HIM A PRISONER A YEAR TO BREAK HIM OF THE DRINK HABIT

Wealthy Farmer Suddenly Reappears After Mysterious Disappearance, Looking Like a New Man as a Result of Better Half's Heroic Curative Treatment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. HAYTON, Wis., Oct. 22.—After a year's absence John Wiltberg, a well-to-do farmer, suddenly reappeared today and explained the mystery which attended his strange disappearance.

Wiltberg tells a story of voluntary imprisonment, which reveals a novel cure for the drink habit.

For exactly a year, he declares, he has been kept a prisoner in his home by his wife, who adopted this method as a last resource to cure him for the craving for drink which had completely mastered him.

In one of his periodical fits of contrition, he agreed to the plan which was proposed by his wife. She confined him in a remote room in their home, where no one could see him or aid him should he break his resolve.

Here, save the daily visits from his wife, who served his meals in the room, he lived in solitude for a year. He was given newspapers and books and an exercise machine. Today he emerged in the best of health, fully cured of all desire for drink.

During his confinement his wife ran the farm. To all inquiries as to his whereabouts she replied that he had suddenly gone away without informing her of his plans.

Wiltberg looks like a new man.

These purchases have all arrived, have been carefully inspected and added to our regular lines, with the result that our unsurpassed line of Men's and Youths' $10 Suits is greatly strengthened and contains hundreds of Suits made to sell at $12.50 and $15—our $15 line of Men's and Youths' Suits contains many $20 values—our $20 line of Men's and Youths' Suits contains many $25 and $28 values—our $12.50 line of Men's and Youths' Overcoats contains many $15 and $16.50 garments—our $18 line of Men's and Youths' Overcoats contains many $22.50 and $25 garments—our $3.50 line of Boys' Smart Suits contains many $5 and $6 values—and a great purchase of Men's Fancy Vests permits our selling Men's $1.25 and $1.50 Vests at 85c—$3.00 and $3.50 Vests at $1.70, and $1.00 and $5.00 Vests at $2.30.

With the arrival of these purchases the assortments here are now far in excess of any previous showing, making selections—even by the most exacting—particularly easy. It will be a costly mistake on the part of all prospective clothing buyers if they fail to profit by the advantages awaiting them at Famous tomorrow.

UGLY SCANDAL CENTERS ABOUT $250,000 CHECK

Startling Developments in Shipbuilding Investigation Likely to Grow Out of Paper Drawn to Lewis Nixon "Or Ourselves."

NIXON SAYS HE DIDN'T KNOW OF ITS EXISTENCE BEFORE

Counsel for All Parties Agree That Words "Or Ourselves" Were Apparently Added After the Check Had Been Drawn.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—A mysterious $250,000 check drawn to the order of "Lewis Nixon or ourselves," is at present furnishing the surprises at the hearing in the proceedings to have a permanent receiver appointed for the United States Shipbuilding Co.

Lewis Nixon swore he had not before seen nor heard of the check; that he did not know for what purpose it was drawn or who got the big sum.

It was shown conclusively that all of the vendors—the sellers of the constituent companies—got their checks and that the $250,000 was over and above the known expenditures of the Shipbuilding company. Yet the $250,000 is gone.

Counsel for both sides questioned Mr. Nixon at great length on direct and cross-examination about the check, and his anxiety to answer every question fully and frankly was evident.

Neither Mr. Untermyer nor Mr. Guthrie has been able to get a clue as to the real and final beneficiary or beneficiaries of the $250,000. Neither one knows which side will "be hurt" when the final exposure comes. Mr. Untermyer frankly said:

Ugliest Scandal of the Entire Exposure.
"Behind this $250,000 check undoubtedly lies the ugliest scandal in the whole shipbuilding exposure. The $250,000 is gone, taken away by somebody."

While Mr. Nixon was being questioned about the check on direct examination, Mr. Guthrie turned on Charles M. Schwab, who sat directly behind him, and said:

"It will be very interesting to Mr. Dresser when he has to account for that $250,000, but it will all come out before we get through with it."

The check was put in evidence. Its number is 392. It is signed for the Trust company of the Republic by James Duane Livingston, the vice-president. It is countersigned by Wm. T. Brower, teller. Both Mr. Livingston and Mr. Brower will be called later as witnesses. It was drawn on the bank of the Manhattan company, and, according to the statements on the back, was deposited there to the credit of the Trust company of the Republic.

Efforts to Hide Identity of Real Beneficiaries.

It is known that, to hide the real beneficiaries of the $250,000 check, the names of several other men were used later on for the actual distribution of the money.

The check was examined closely by Mr. Nixon, Mr. Untermyer and Mr. Guthrie, and they all agreed that the words after Lewis Nixon's name, "or ourselves," were written in fainter ink than was the rest of the check, and were seemingly added after the check had been drawn. At the time the check was drawn, Aug. 11, 1902, the only officers the shipbuilding company had were the three boy dummy directors, furnished by the Corporation Trust Co. of New Jersey. Of these three, one was a dummy president and another was a dummy secretary.

The hearing, after today, will be adjourned until week after next.

This arrangement was made partly on account of the announcement made by Charles M. Schwab, who has been present for three days under subpoena to testify, that his wife and mother are ill.

LOST BOY'S ONLY ANXIETY WAS FOR "LOST" MOTHER

"I'M NOT LOST, BUT MAMMA IS"

Straying Urchin Worries for Fear Mother and Sister Will Not Get Home.

TELLS POLICE TO FIND THEM

After Seeing Signs of Downtown World, Little Man Goes Home to Tell Father.

"Did you find mamma? She got lost downtown, and I couldn't find her anywhere."

The speaker was little 5-year-old Charles Thien. He had just returned to his home, 3678 South Broadway, after his parents had spent an anxious afternoon searching for him. Charles' question was addressed to his father.

"Yes, your mamma is here, but where have you been?"

"I've been hunting for mamma," the little man replied. "She and Louise were lost, and I wanted to bring them home."

Charles had gone down town earlier in the day with his mother and sister, Louise, and while on Broadway, near Olive street, became separated from them. He maintained that his mother and sister were lost, not he.

According to the story the little man told after reaching home, Charles had not been in the least worried by the separation from his mother and sister, except that he feared they might not be able to get home safely. When he could not find them the young man turned his attention to sight-seeing. He visited the bazaar, saw the picture books and toys, and went to big stores in which baseballs, gloves and other sporting goods were displayed. All told, he had a most satisfactory afternoon and there was a certain freedom about it that he had never known before.

Finally something within told him that the supper hour was approaching. He was not exactly certain which way he should go, but he knew what policemen were for. He found one.

"Did you see mamma and Louise?" he asked; "they're lost."

"It looks as if you were the one who was lost," the policeman replied. Charles took exception to this view of the situation and the policeman did not insist.

"What's your name?" he asked.

"Charles Thien," was the prompt reply, "and I live at 3678 South Broadway. Do you think mamma will be home when I get there?"

The officer assured the young knight-errant that he would probably find his mother at home, put him on a Broadway car and told the conductor where to put him off.

THE UNFINISHED LOVE STORY

Part of Novel Which Josephine Dow Was Writing Is to Be Published.

When pretty Josephine Dow ran away from her home at Maplewood to become a noted actress in Chicago the most interesting fact developed was that she had left behind an unfinished love story. The deduction was simple that the heroine of the love story written by a girl of 14 would be a reflection of the writer and might contain a hint of her aspirations and probable destination.

It was found that the heroine of the love story was Mabel Tremont and that she had run away to Chicago with the villain of the book, where a mock marriage took place. Chicago was the clow which was followed and there, as expected, the youthful novel writer was found.

Mabel was tripping across the field, humming softly, and the daisies seemed to nod their dew-kissed heads in approval. As she reached the town she heard a masculine voice exclaim: "O, that is Miss Tremont. Yes, she is very beautiful." But she did not hear the other matter under his breath: "Ah, I thought so. The wild bird shall be caged."

This part of the unfinished love story will be finished in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

LINEMAN HURLED TO GROUND.
Live Wire Causes Fall From Top of a Pole.

While repairing a cable on top of a telegraph pole near Hamilton and Maple avenues, Earl W. Glenny of 1829 Theodosia avenue touched a live wire and fell 30 feet to the ground.

Pitching headlong into a pile of loose sand, he lost consciousness. His burns were found to be serious, but the injuries from the fall were slight. He was removed to his home.

BUTLER DECISION ONE YEAR HENCE

M. K. McGrath Says Supreme Court Will Not Reach Case Before Fall of 1904.

M. K. McGrath, former secretary of state, says of the Butler and other cases before the supreme court:

"In the present congested condition of division No. 2, before which are the cases of Butler and others, the Butler case cannot be reached in its order before the middle or after the October call of the court in 1904.

This division has all cases enough before it demanding immediate consideration and to keep it occupied between this and the next April term.

"The Snyder case, involving questions of law, some of which are like those in the Butler case, and submitted more than a year before the Butler case was submitted, has not been reached by the court.

"The supreme court in nearly all its business is nearly two years behind.

"It is not at all likely that the Butler case will be given precedence over others, but it will come up and be determined in its regular order, regardless of public eagerness for its disposal.

VOICE RESTORED BY CHEWING TOBACCO

Man, Dumb for Two Years, Dreamed Weed's Juice Would Bring Back Speech.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 23.—F. M. Wolfe, living near Ridge Hill, who has been dumb for more than two years, is now able to carry on a conversation as a result of chewing tobacco for several hours.

Two years ago last June Wolfe was struck by lightning while sitting in the door of his farmhouse, and from that time until last Sunday had not been able to utter a sound.

Some of the best specialists in the state are said to have declared that Wolfe was afflicted with permanent paralysis of the vocal organs.

Last Saturday night Wolfe reports that he dreamed that if he took a chew of tobacco he would be able to speak again.

A few hours after he had taken the tobacco Sunday he was able to make slight vocal sounds, and continuing chewing, he was soon able to talk.

CLOSE FIGURES IN NEW YORK POLITICS

In a Newspaper Poll, the Race Is Shown to Be on Pretty Even Terms.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The World is making a careful poll of the votes of greater New York to forecast the result of the mayoralty election. Here is the vote taken in the first two days of the canvass:

Total vote canvassed in Manhattan two days	54,387
For Low	21,179
For McClellan	7,217

Total vote canvassed in Brooklyn two days	8,228
For Low	4,620
For McClellan	2,498

McClellan shows a gain in the total figures for Manhattan, having now a small lead over his fusion opponent within the boundaries of old New York. In Brooklyn Mayor Low maintains the big margin which the first figures gave him over his opponent.

One of the striking features of the canvass is the expressed intention of a great many Democrats to vote for Low. The tabulated results show 245 men who wrote themselves down as Democrats declared for the present mayor. In addition, a large number of ballots are returned upon which the voter supports Low, but omits to state his party preference. As a general thing men claiming to be Republicans who vote for McClellan show no disposition not to conceal their "usual party choice."

THE POST-DISPATCH DAILY STORY. BUMPING AGAINST IDEALS

This Is a Story of Comparisons. A City Man Was Rejected by a Country Girl Because She saw that their Ideas and Ideals were so Different. But Both their Ideals Changed in the End.

BY PEYTON WILLIAMS.

(Copyright, 1932, by Daily Story Publishing Co.)

Dora Spellman was the most profound mystery Joe Mason had ever felt called on to solve. The longer he tried the more hopeless he found the solution. He found his standards so inadequate and the surrounding conditions so unfamiliar and baffling that his characteristic assurance deserted him entirely and he groped in the greatest perplexity.

Joe was a typical city-bred boy. You could not throw him into any situation in a great city where he would not land on his feet. And this made it all the more humiliating for him to acknowledge himself so completely downed, almost terrified by this single country maiden. But Joe was learning faster than he knew.

He was a splendid type of the product of a great city. Born of good parents, but thrown upon his own resources, he had made much of himself. With but little opportunity for the activity of his keen wit. Of course, it was superficial, but was sufficient for business purposes and to give him a good presence and carriage. He had gone into a great wholesale house early in life, and by industry, energy and enterprise had been advanced rapidly. His habits and morals were good for the city. Partly through a fortunate heredity, partly through his sturdy common sense, he had avoided the great pitfalls of drinking and gambling, the two Molochs of the city-bred and bred youth. To be sure he was no white-winged angel and took an occasional fly at the ponies and had an occasional "night" with the boys. But he avoided excess and attended strictly to business. Hence his advancement.

He had the inevitable contempt for the "country jay" common to every city lad and regarded the farmer as a sort of all-wise developed biped, designed by an all-wise Providence for city people to prey upon. He knew all about girls, too, in his own estimation. He had experienced the adolescent yearnings and gone through the various stages. He had met the city girl of his station, admired and sought her. And her worldly-wise mind had appealed to him and he liked her immensely. But he had shied at the thought of entanglements and while he was ever delighted to meet the fair sex and exchange passages of wit and repartee, he never had been seriously tempted to tie himself down to married life.

No wonder the broad-browed, calm-eyed girl with her maidenly reserve, her simple dignity, her wide range of information, both of nature and books, and her habit of looking so straight out of her clear eyes puzzled him. He had never known a girl that talked so much sense and was so intelligent and the utter absence of anything resembling a simper, mystified and bewildered him. Then, too, she so often put him at so humiliating a disadvantage by her accurate knowledge and education, which contrasted so strongly with his superficial information and flippant wit, that he began to feel uncomfortable and to lose his superabundant and over-developed confidence in himself as the smartest fellow in the city.

His translation from the busy city life to the quiet farm in the far West had been sudden and unexpected. The doctor had told him one day that he must give up business for a long time and get away from the city in a dry climate and live out of doors—work out of doors if possible, or at least work out of doors. So he had resigned his position and hurried westward, armed with a letter of introduction to Daniel Spellman, who had agreed, with true hospitality, to take him as a boarder on the big ranch. Spellman was not in the business of taking boarders, but a letter from a mutual friend, coupled with a natural love of companionship, had gained the point.

Mason had not noticed Dora much at first. She was not a girl of striking appearance and her manners were distinctly retiring and unobtrusive. She was but recently returned from an Eastern college and had assumed her place as housekeeper for her widowed father. After the first novelty had worn off Mason began to notice the girl more, and the more he noticed her the more he liked her. She was distinctly pretty, in a striking and unobtrusive way, and she had a personality that could not fail to impress itself upon those with whom she came in contact.

"Hello!" remarked Joe, to himself, one day after he had been at the Spellmans' a couple of weeks. "That is quite a girl. I see a chance to pass my spare time very pleasantly. Nothing like a little flirtation to add spice to life. She's a simple little thing. She's been away to school and seems to have an idea that she knows it all. I'll have to put on a little city finesse and take a fall out of her nerve. Hope she won't take it too hard. As I'd hate to pass a cold deck to these good people, who are certainly using me white."

So Joe began his summer flirtation, but before he had gone very far he ceased to waste any sympathy on the girl and began to wonder if he really amounted to as much as he had supposed, after all. All the arts of small and sly persiflage which he had found to be the expected and effective thing with the city girls of his experiences he found to be of no avail with this Western maid, except to leave himself with the uncomfortable conviction that he was an object of amusement, if not of contempt. As to the more ardent love-making, he made one attempt one moonlight night on the broad veranda—but no more. The response was so unexpected and so decisive that he received what he termed "the shock of his life." They became very good friends, however, and enjoyed many a ride on the hard little ponies over the rolling prairies and many an animated talk on the veranda. He began to see a new life of which he had never dreamed and to catch a glimpse of things which had hitherto had no place in his scheme of life.

Finally he discovered that the girl had made a place in his life never to be displaced by any human being before and that his life before he met her had been hollow and gray, and the thought of a future without her became intolerable. Being given by nature and training to prompt action he proposed to her and was not much surprised when she refused him with a good deal of emphasis.

"I do not know how serious you are, Mr. Mason," she said. "In fact, your sincerity always is a matter of some doubt to me, because you are so different, you know. If you are thoroughly in earnest, I am very sorry; if not you are trifling with a very sacred subject and should be ashamed."

He protested his sincerity and spoke with so much less flippancy than usual that she begged his pardon for the suggestion, and said: "It is impossible. Our lives and ideals are so far apart that I wonder that you do not see the impossibility. I could not live in your world and you could not live in mine. I am very sorry, because I like you so much as a friend and I hate to lose you."

"O, you can't lose me," replied Joe, cheerfully, but his face was rueful and he did not repress his cheerfulness for many days. In fact he took to cupping with a view that did wonders for his health. Spellman, at his request, put him on regularly with the rest of the punchers, and insisted on paying him full wages. He worked like a demon and soon mastered the art. He still occupied his old apartments, when not too far to return at night, and saw considerable of Dora. He plunged into reading with a zest he never had felt before, and he followed her suggestions closely in the matter of a choice of books. A new world began to unfold to him and the narrowness of his old life and the futility of all the rush and feverishness of the city grew upon him. His health and strength improved apace. He was better than he ever had been, but still he lingered on.

One day he received a letter from his old firm urging him to return and offering him a largely increased salary with a promise of a partnership in the future. He took it to Dora and she was delighted with his good fortune.

"But I don't want to go without you," he said.

"Don't, please," she replied. "It cannot be."

So he went back to the city, but he carried with him new impulses and bigger ideas of life very different than he had brought with him. His friends marveled greatly at the change.

After he had gone Dora was surprised to find how lonely the ranch was. She missed being greatly interested in watching his nature unfold and had felt flattered, quite naturally, at his submission to her as a preceptor. Then, too, the honest love of a good man is not displeasing to any woman. In fact, she thought of him a great deal—rather too much for her peace of mind.

One day about six months after he left she was surprised and not wholly displeased to see him dismount at the door. "What, broken down again already?" she said, greeting him.

"No," he replied. "Am better than ever. But there's no use trying. I simply can't stand it. I would rather be a couchpotter where I can see you now and then, than to be a merchant prince where you are so part of my life. I'm going to strike your father for a job. Would you associate with me if I was a regular couchpotter and lived down at the quarters?"

"Maybe father would sell us part of the ranch and let you help to manage it," she replied, dropping her eyes.

Mason gazed at her in utter bewilderment. She flushed from neck to temple. He sprang to her side with a glad cry. "Dora!" he cried, "you are not trifling? Do you—is it true? Great heavens! am I dreaming?"

He gathered her unresisting into his arms. "A girl like you to learn as well as a man," she whispered.

Mgh Say on Porch

Ex-President Cleveland used to fish and hunt a good deal in the Barnegat Bay district, John Camburn, a Watertown, Ga. man, who had agreed, with true hospitality, to take him as a boarder on the big ranch. Spellman was not in the business of taking boarders, but a letter from a mutual friend, coupled with a natural love of companionship, had gained the point.

"SALLY OF MISSOURI."

When one reads "Sally of Missouri," by R. E. Young (McClure, Phillips & Co., New York) the wonder grows that the picturesque Ozark mountain region has not figured more largely in native fiction.

Mass Young's novel reveals the possibilities of the Ozarks as a setting for a dramatic story rich in local color and character. Perhaps its most salient teaching is that Missouri has been treated unfairly thus far in the competition of western writers eager for plots and people to figure in western tales. Certainly the vivid life of the Ozark country offers a most generous return along these lines. If "Sally of Missouri" is to be taken as indicative of the wealth of material at hand.

But it is the quality of what may be called the higher fatalism. For, according to Mr. Lathbury, whose ideas are based on what is known as the New Thought, the joyous march of humanity, including every one of its industries, is a forced march, such as that made by children whose hands the father tightly holds, as he urges them up the slopes of the mountains. "There is an immense fight, but we are as certain to make it as the globe is orbiting the sun. We are being lifted to our ideal. It is not the freedom of our way, but of His. We move steadily to our consummation, struggling as we go. Our Father frequently dragging us onward until suddenly we espy a distant light, and then pull no longer at His hand, but almost outrun Him."

But a few quotations can hardly do justice to this book. It is the newest statement of that philosophy of spiritual optimism which Horatio W. Dresser, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, William Walker Atkinson, Uriel Rahman and other thinkers have spread before the world. (Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York, Price, $1.00.)

NEW THINGS TO COME.
Fox, Duffield & Co. of New York announce for early publication "The Compromise of Life," by Col. Henry Watterston of Kentucky; "The Forerunner," a novel, by Neth Boyce, a new writer; "In Beauty's Realm," a collection of C. Allan Gilbert's charming portraits of women; "Rhythms of Real Children," by Betty Sage, a daughter of the late Dean of the Sage of Albany, illustrated in colors by Jessie Wilcox Smith; "The Life of a Wooden Doll," a juvenile book of a very novel sort—the rhymes and doling of a doll related in clever rhymes and pictured by the camera; "The First Loves of Perilla," a novelette, by John Corbin, the well-known dramatic critic; "The Shepherd's Pipe," a collection of nature's poems of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, selected and arranged by Fitzroy Carrington; and "The Second Shepherd's Play," a "miracle play" of the fourteenth century, to be issued uniform with this firm's edition of the old "moralities" of "Everyman."

Among the calendars to be brought out are, "The Omar Calendar," selections from Fitzgerald's Rubaiyat, transcribed by hand and richly printed in colors; "A Calendar of Paul Hellen's Drawings," reproduced in photography; and "The Pinner's Calendar," described as "a calendar of advice to young men of chronic social activities," by Anna Archibald and Georgina Jones, with pictures by Florence Wymann.

JOY AND POWER.
By Henry van Dyke, D. D., author of "Ships and Havens," etc. Special type designs in two colors by the Merrymount Press. 128 pages, 12mo, cloth, gilt top. Price 74 cents net. Postage 6 cents.

Dr. Van Dyke has achieved eminence in three fields, theology, literature and scholarship, and fruits from each field are present in this artistic volume from his pen. He writes of "Three Messages With One Meaning," and says that they were given not far apart in time, though at some distance from one another in space. The one called "Joy and Power" was delivered in Los Angeles, Cal., at the opening of the Presbyterian general assembly, May 21, 1932. The one called "The Battle of Life" was delivered on Baccalaureate Sunday at Princeton University, June 7. The one called "The Good Way" was delivered on Baccalaureate Sunday at Harvard University, June 14. Now that they are put together the author sees that "they point in the same direction, urge the same course of action and appeal to the same motive."

And yet with a profound disquietude with one meaning they gain in earnestness and power. They are, in brief, sincere exhortations to right living, to courage, to wisdom, and to the other attributes which go to make up the life of a citizen. Right is urged for right's sake, not because of punishment or reward, but because it is right. The reward will then follow of itself in a perfect happiness. The title of the book betrays its wholesome optimism.

The sermons deal, as the author states, with simple truths, but truths which we need often to have brought to remembrance. They are marked by the clear-cut style and polished utterance for which Dr. Van Dyke is noted. The text is set in bold-faced type, printed in black and red, making a highly attractive gift book. (Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., 428 and 428 Broadway, New York.)

SOME CLEVER EPIGRAMS.
One of the epigrams mentioned by Prof. Brander Matthews, in an article on "American Epigrams" in Harper's for November, is the following by Walter Larned: "You say, when I kissed you, you are sure I must quite have forgotten myself. So I did; you are right. No, I'm not such an egotist, dear, it is true. To think of myself when I'm looking at you."

Many examples are also given of epigrams by Holmes, Lowell, Aldrich, and other of our poets, among them this adapted by Fitz-Greene Hall from Goethe: "All honor to woman, the sweetheart, the wife. The delight of our homesteads by night and by day. The darling who never does harm in her life. Except when determined to have her own way."

CRISIS AND REMEDY.
"The Impending Crisis" is the title of a pretentious volume just issued anonymously by The Commonwealth Co. of Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis. The book, which is well written and illustrated, recounts the political and social evils with which the United States has made us familiar, and asserts that the country is in a desperate strait. Chapters are devoted to social and political crimes, the menace of the trusts, tax dodging by the rich, the tariff evils, the labor troubles, stock manipulations, get-rich-quick frauds, infidelity and other ills. The histories of ancient republics and states are drawn upon for warning lessons, and the terrors of the French revolution are recounted. The anonymous author's remedy is summed up in two or three paragraphs. It is the equal and impartial administration of just laws, the revocation of unjust laws, and a general revival of public sentiment, so that the people will vote for principles instead of party. "They must cease to worship the Moloch of wealth, that destroys so many votaries, and learn to esteem men for their honesty and their intelligence; they must exorcise the crimes of the rich, and see to it that a system of caste does not obtain in America; they must kill monopoly by demanding the enactment and enforcement of laws that guard the life, liberty and equal privileges." This is all that "Junius, Jr.," the writer of the book, has to offer as a remedy. It is another case of the mountain and the mouse. The puzzle is, Who pays the bill, and why?

JOYOUS FATALISM.
"The Being With the Upturned Face" is truly described as a work of high moral purpose, inspirational in character, devaluing the idea of man as a being transitional between the animal and the spiritual. The author, Clarence Lathbury, has an extraordinary flow of optimism. His chapters are one continued note of jubilation at the infinite possibilities which he foresees in human destiny. In view of these possibilities, he says: "Let us refuse, then, to play the sycophant or to attempt to vindicate our presence in a world that was built for us. Is there another sight so grand as a human being repudiating himself? Life should be sacred and hopeful, its hours replete with praise, grace with great and good thoughts and deeds. If we rate all men as gods, where are the under classes, where the ethical problems?"

But it is the quality of what may be called the higher fatalism. For, according to Mr. Lathbury, whose ideas are based on what is known as the New Thought, the joyous march of humanity, including every one of its industries, is a forced march, such as that made by children whose hands the father tightly holds, as he urges them up the slopes of the mountains. "There is an immense fight, but we are as certain to make it as the globe is orbiting the sun. We are being lifted to our ideal. It is not the freedom of our way, but of His. MISS DWAN TENNIS WINNER

High School Girls' Tournament at O'Fallon Park Ends With a Close Contest.

The finals of the High School Girls' Tennis tournament were played on the courts at O'Fallon Park Thursday afternoon, resulting in a victory for Miss Dwan. The preliminaries were held from Monday until Wednesday afternoon, when Misses Dwan and Loebe had defeated all comers and were announced to play for the championship.

In the preliminaries a number of good players were entered, among them Misses Swanner, Le Cron, Hurst, Windhorst, Brady, Byrne and Rohr. Misses Le Cron and Hurst played the best games in their class, but were unable to hold their own against Misses Loebe and Dwan.

Miss Loebe started in the finals like a winner, and took the first set, 7 to 5, but Miss Dwan's superior serving turned the next two sets in her favor, 6-4 and 6-3. Miss Loebe was at her best on returning and covering the back court and took the next set, 6-2.

The score in sets then stood 2 to 2. Miss Dwan won the last set easily.

The winner receives a gold medal and a silver cup, presented by the High School Athletic Association.

Meas. Parrot and Lillard were the officials. Among the spectators were some of the former winners and a number of Washington University boys.

BONE DOCTORS BADLY USED UP

Kirkville Footballists Are Sore as Result of Pilgrimage to Wisconsin. KIRKVILLE, Mo., Oct. 23.—The Bone Doctors' team returned from Madison this morning, to get a rest from the rough usage received at the hands of Wisconsin University Wednesday. The Osteopaths have a game with the Still University team here Saturday.

The Osteopaths had it badly rubbed into them at Madison, the Wisconsin lads running over them to the tune of 22 to 0.

In the first half, the doctors did great work. They started out by gaining steadily but lost the ball on a fumble. Wisconsin never let go of it after that and scored very soon. The rest of the 22-minute half was a hard tussle, the Osteopaths putting up a great defense and yielding but another score. The Missourians gave out in the second half and the university men rushed four touchdowns across the line.

Washburn, the former Missouri player, is in Wisconsin's line this year and playing great football.

M. BEUCAIRE IS SELECTED TO WIN

Their Recent Race, With Present Re-arrangement of Weights, Prompts the Choice.

NOTABLE RACE IN PROSPECT

Merrie George and Weird Seem Almost Certain Winners of Their Friday Events.

BY R. D. WALSH.

FAIR GROUNDS RACETRACK, Oct. 23.—With the exception of the fourth race the card presented for the consideration of racegoers this afternoon is an ordinary one. The fourth race, however, will be well worth the price of admission, because it promises to be a memorable contest. There are only two horses entered in it, but they are all high class.

On recent form and figures Bessie McCarthy cannot be given a remote chance to win here.

Two days ago Flitlock beat her eight lengths at a mile and a sixteenth with even weights and there is no reason why he should not do the same thing again.

In the same race Beucaire beat her two lengths and gave her eight pounds. Today he is asked to give her only one pound and he should certainly defeat her again when the conditions are far more favorable to him. Bessie was a fair horse in Chicago, but she is aiming high when she is going against such good horses as Beucaire and Flitlock.

Aladdin has done nothing since he came to St. Louis to justify the inference that he can win here, but he should be good enough to beat Bessie McCarthy for third money.

Flitlock defeated Beucaire last Wednesday at a mile and a sixteenth by about seven lengths, but the Frenchman was giving the Hughes horse seven pounds in actual weight, besides a year in age.

They are practically evenly weighted today, Beucaire carrying 106 pounds to Flitlock's 105. This should bring them very close together, but Flitlock will like the additional distance better than Beucaire.

According to the scale of weights at this season of the year Beucaire is showing Flitlock about six pounds. Flitlock was never in better condition than now and, with Calvit in the saddle, will be hard to beat in the winter. But with the switch in weights on their previous race I am compelled to go to Beucaire for the winner, though I must admit I have the utmost respect for the prowess of Flitlock and for his gameness and grit.

Yellow Tail Is

Due to Win Here.

Next in interest to the fourth race will come the fifth. It is at a mile and seventy yards and has a nice field of seven engaged in it. Yellow Tail will be the favorite here and should win, but it is no sure thing for him. He should not be played at less than 7 to 5, and even these figures are low for such an unreliable animal. Yellow Tail's best distance is seven furlongs, but he has won at a mile and is seemingly able to go much farther. But if he is not pressed at any distance beyond the latter he is very liable to surrender.

Light Opera is the horse that will probably give trouble to Yellow Tail in this race, and I expect to see him a keen contender at the finish.

Light Opera at 6 to 1 will be a much better speculation than Yellow Tail. Light Opera at 6 to 1 will be a much better speculation than Yellow Tail. Light Opera at 6 to 1 will be a much better speculation than Yellow Tail.

The last race, at a mile, has the largest field on the card. It is a selling race and devoted to maturing horses. Sheehan is going so consistently at all distances, at all sorts of prices, that it is hard to go beyond him in selecting the winner of this race. The bookmakers do not seem to have any respect for his horse, but he is much better than he is credited with being.

He wins as easily at a mile and a sixteenth as at five furlongs, and in this versatility lies his undoubted value.

The first race is for 2-year-olds at five and one-half furlongs, and it looks like a soft spot for Sanctum. Note this fellow's good second to Miss Crawford a few days ago. What would Miss Crawford be in here? About 10 to 1 would be a liberal price against her. Sanctum will be ridden by Sheehan, who will get off well, and that is about all that the Bettors have to say about it.

T. P. Taylor's Orient should be the runner-up. She is a filly of considerable class, but seems unlucky. In most of her races, Walnut Hill should not be worse than third, and she has a good chance of securing second place from Orient.

The second race at six furlongs is for all ages, and has a large and indifferent field of 12 engaged in it. With six pounds off his last two races, I expect to see Sharp Bird win. If Mr. P. Miller is on him, however, he would suggest that he be left severely alone, but with an average jockey up he should certainly be returned the winner of this race.

The 2-year-olds with light weight up are very dangerous here, and the best of them seem to be Lady Free Knight and Check Morgan. Elastic will be played as usual, but he seems to be of no account at all now. He is getting enough exercise anyway.

Merrie George

Seems a Good Thing.

The best thing of the day seems to be Merrie George in the third race. This fellow completely outpaces his company and looks like a certain winner. Sheehan, of course, will have the mount on him, and he will win as easily with him as he did recently. Ann Davis is much the best of the others and should be second as easily as George is first. Outside of these two the field is a poor one and all the others have an even chance for third money. Kingsboro, however, is my choice for that position.

If there was any lingering doubt about the right of Miss Crawford to be considered the queen of the local 2-year-old fillies it was removed yesterday by her notable victory over a field of all-ages horses. She won easily and impressively. For a few hundred yards she indulged Excelsior with the lead, but turning into the home she took command, and won as her rider pleased by half a dozen lengths. Had there been any necessity for it, she could have run the race in half a second faster.

GOLF HONORS FOR HARVARD.

Egan Is Expected to Make Best of Individual Record.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., Oct. 23.—Play was resumed Friday in the individual championship contest of the Intercollegiate Golf Association. The players were coupled as follows: Truettale of Yale and McFarland of Pennsylvania, W. E. Bond of Harvard and Reinhardt of Princeton, Chick of Harvard and Baker of Princeton, H. C. Kegan of Harvard and McBurney of Harvard.

The indications now are that Harvard will carry off double honors again this year. She sent seven men here, and four of them, H. C. Chick, qualified. H. C. Egan, who won the graduate championship last year, is showing up well again and is looked upon to win the individual honors once more.
